

Why Not?

"Do you know what would be a mighty good thing to look after?" said an earnest talking gentleman, Saturday forenoon, "Well, I'll tell you, if you have the time and inclination to listen and absorb some words of wisdom. Its to look after the cooking future of our daughters. Now, this is an old subject, is cooking, and yet it is an important one. It is taken care of in the larger cities and cooking schools are quite common and may be taken advantage of by all those, so inclined. But we in the smaller towns have not this privilege and I think that it ought to be looked into. Of course a great many of our daughters learn from their mothers but it is hard work to get them interested; and the mothers usually have not the time to devote to their daughters education along this line without their aid and inclination.

What started me to thinking was this: we had a young lady of about 18 visiting us last summer and my wife was taken ill and the hired girl was absent for a few days. My daughter was up against the proposition as all she could do was to make fudge and some lovely cake. The little visitor took hold at once and remarked calmly for me to come home, as usual, which I did. I was highly pleased and surprised to find a good substantial meal awaiting me which was served and prepared to my perfect satisfaction. The young lady told me that she learned the grand old art at cooking school. And my wife was sitting up in bed with a pleasant look on her face and some appetizing broth was responsible for it.

Now we have departments for this and departments for that in the smaller cities but if we had some place where our girls could learn to put up a good wholesome meal, without interfering with the routine duties at home it would be a mighty fine thing. I should certainly be highly delighted to subscribe for something of this kind and see somebody besides myself take an interest in it.

I could talk an hour on the advantages of this cooking school and lots of other people could too. But I just offer the suggestion as a starter. Why do you know I have the dearest girl in the world but let me tell you what she did last week. I asked her to toast her old dad some crackers and she was so long about it that I went out to see what was the matter. I'll be everlastingly hanged, my friend, if she wasn't holding a cracker in the hot oven of the kitchen range with her curling iron." And with an amused look the good father went on down Central Avenue.—Nebraska City Press.

Teachers Must Not Break Contract

Teachers who break contracts with school boards and leave their schools for a time without teachers must proceed with more caution in the future, the following ruling have been made with a view to penalize a teacher for this action by revoking her certificate. This ruling was issued Monday by State Superintendent J. L. McBrien:

A contract between a school board and a teacher is a mutual obligation, equally binding upon both parties. Neither party can with impunity rescind such contract would be answerable in damages to the aggrieved party. It requires a majority of the board to legally accept a teachers' resignation.

Under the existing statute every certificate issued under the school laws of Nebraska shall be revoked by the authority issuing the same for any cause which would have authorized or required such authority to refuse to grant it if known at the time it was granted. Therefore, on and after February 22, 1908, the University of Nebraska, the state normal schools, and the office of the state superintendent of public instruction will revoke their respective certificates granted to any teacher who breaks his or her contract with a public school district without first being released by a majority of the district board or the board of education.

The circular cites the following statutory example:

"Last year the board of education in a certain city school district in Nebraska raised the salary of their superintendent from $1800 to $2000 per year and gave him a 3 year contract. Twice during the current school year this city superintendent has been tendered two positions in school work at a salary of $2500 per year but he declined both propositions. This is indeed a great sacrifice for this educator to make so far as the immediate present is concerned, but the success of his future is as firmly established as the eternal hills."—Auburn Herald.

After Lost Races

Prof. Fred Star of the University of Chicago left for the Far East last week, in search of an unknown Caucasian race supposed to exist in the Philippines. He will spend three months in the study of the islanders and possibly may go to inland China, where the Lolos, another mysterious white race, exists. For many years it has been one of Prof. Star's ambitions to go China and live among the Lolos, who are savages of a low type. No one has dared to go among them.

Prof. Star said he would carry no firearms during his visit to the mysterious races. He, however, will take with him several graphophones, with which he will record the new languages.

On behalf of all our people, on behalf no less of the honest man means that the honest man who earns each day's livelihood by that day's sweat of his brow, it is necessary to insist upon honesty in business and politics alike, in all walks of life, in big things and in little things; upon just and fair dealing as between man and man. Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible, but I can now surely kill the pains and pangas of this deplorable disease.
In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend
